constitutional or statutory prohibition, for every one reduced a gallon or a case or one of each a week, will soon get out of the habit. It need not be suspi- cioned that Mr. McKittrick is in league with Mrs. Berger or Dr. Anna Howard Shaw nor with Ab Stemious himself. He is nothing if not original and would scorn to leave nothing in the bottle but the smell and cork. Tapering is his motto, not sudden death. The deprivation of the great majority is tempered with due regard for health and happi- ness, but against whooping it up and heaving Jonah. The in- junction, "Be moderate in all things," our prosecuting attor- ney intends shall be pasted in every hat in his jurisdiction, and if any one feels aggrieved over the limination to one gallon or one case a week, the considerate manufacturer of rules to fit the case in the absence of statutory provisions has also shown due consideration of the rights of those consumers who do not wish to emulate downright pro- hibitionists, but if any one de- sires to and does exceed the speed limit, so to speak, the prosecuting attorney must be informed, not for the purpose of interfering, but to be enabled to keep tab on those who persist in imbibing more than thirty nine draps a day. Sign the declaration of independence and order enough to run you regard- less of the quantity, but be ad- vised that in not following what is supposed to be an illustrious example and confining your liba- tions to the little in one gallon jug or in 48 pint beers in the time limit, you are liable to be- come persona non grata.

Verily the world do move.

The local entries in the athle- tic meet at Brunswick will be given next week. We are too short of space to give them in this issue.
